It has been some time since we have given our customers the benefit of a cut price sale, and in this one we propose to make up for lost time. We have never in our lives had such a tremendous trade and it has taxed us to our utmost to wait on it and keep our stock replenished. But we are a little uneasy for fear our last visit to the eastern market has overloaded us. You see, we were having such an unprecedented trade and were offered some large lots so cheap to close out, and then the McKinley Bill going into effect advancing everything, so that taking all these things together it was enough to turn a fellow's head and cause him to over buy, and that is just what we did. We are very badly and are going to commence in time to unload. Read carefully the two parallel columns on either side and see if you don't think we mean just what we say, that we are going to unload.

OVERLOADED

TERMS: One low cash price marked in plain figures. No jowling or dickering.

AN EXCELLENT START.

How the Lovely Sardinia Taught Archie the First Lesson in School.

A vivid blush dyed the cheek of the young girl.

Archie Paoli was about to propose.

"Sardinia," he said, "may—may—"

"Well, Archie?"

"I—I was going to say, Sardinia—I was going to say that—"

"Yes," he broke in eagerly, "I was going to say that I—that I—"

"Well, what were you going to say?"

"Why, I was—I was—"

Young Mr. Paoli stammered at his collar to loosen it, cleared his throat, and tried it again.

"Why, the fact is—"

"Yes, Archie, the fact is—"

"That I—I'm—I—I—"

"Yes, You—you—"

"I—I have forgotten what I was going to say."

"Oh, Archie! How could you!"

"No, I haven't!" said the poor fellow, desperately. "I remember now. I was going to ask—"

"Yes, Archie, you were going to ask—"

"That's it! I was going to ask—Sardinia, don't you know what I was going to ask?"

"I am not a mind-reader, Mr. Paoli."

"Don't mind me, Sardinia! Try to read my heart!"

"I think I can, Archie," she said softly. "You want to ask me—"

"That's right," he said, encouragingly. "To—"

"To—"

"Yes, yes—to be—go on! Go on!"

"To be—"

"To be—"

"That's right—to be my—"

"Your—"

"Yes, My—my—why don't you go ahead? You're the bluestest girl I ever saw."

"I can't say it, Archie!"

"Yes, you can. To be my—what's the rest of it? Don't let a little thing like that fluster you. Be a brave girl, Sardinia!"

"I can't say it!"

"O yes, you can. Speak it right out!"

"You wanted to ask me to be your wife, Archie."

"There!" he exclaimed, in triumph. "You see how easily it is done." And he patting her head affectionately. "All you want is a little courage."

"Was that what you wished to ask me?"

"Of course it was!"

"Then why don't you do it, sir?"

"Oh, Great Christopher! You know what I—"

"Yes, sir, I know it all the time. I've known it for six months. But you've got to ask it. Get down on your knees!"

"Why, Sardinia! What's the use of my—"

"Down on your knees!"

He hopped down, and the impetuous young beauty made him repeat after her the necessary question. She promised to take it under advisement and give him a favorable answer if she found on inquiry that he had been always good to his mother. And then she permitted him to rise, the most thoroughly humbled young man in America—Chicago Tribune.

EXTRAORDINARY CURE.

She Couldn't Get Damages, But Insisted on Having Satisfaction.

A woman who was painfully making her way on two rude crutches called at a house on Third avenue yesterday and asked if the man was at home. He was, and he appeared and asked what was wanted.

"I was raising your house three days ago and fell on your sidewalk," she explained.

"What?"

"Well, I think you ought to pay me damages."

"But my sidewalk is all right; there are no holes."

"But I fell, sir."

"I don't doubt that, but it was your own carelessness."

"No, sir."

"It certainly was."

"I want twenty-five dollar damages."

"You won't get a cent, madam!"

"I am so badly hurt that I'll have to crutch around for three months."

"I'm sorry, but I'm not to blame."

"Then you won't give me anything?"

"No, ma'am."

"Not even 50¢?"

"No."

"Then take that!"

She dropped her crutches, swung her

THE LAWS OF HEALTH ARE TAUGHT IN THE SCHOOLS.

but in the schools, but in a way to be of much practical benefit and are never illustrated by living examples, which in many cases might easily be done. If some scholar, who had just contracted a cold, was brought before the school, so that all could hear the dry loud cough and know its significance, see the thin white coating on the tongue and later, as the cold developed, see the profuse watery expectoration and thin watery discharge from the nose, not one of them would ever forget what the first symptoms of a cold were. The scholar should then be given Chamberlain's Cough Remedy freely, that all might see that even a severe cold could be cured in one or two days, or greatly mitigated, when properly treated as soon as the first symptoms appear. This remedy is famous for its cures of coughs, colds and croup. It is made especially for these diseases and is the most prompt and most reliable medicine known for the purpose. 50 cent bottles for sale by Buckner Leavell.

Miss Kingcross—How awfully good of you! What line of business are you in?

Mr. Stuart—Wholesale liquor dealer.—Judge.

A son of Mr. M. D. Fusser a merchant of Gibraltar, N. C., was so badly afflicted with rheumatism for a year or more as to be unable to work or go to school. His father concluded to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It soon cured him and he has since walked one and a half miles to school and back every school day. 50 cent bottles for sale by Buckner Leavell.
